

Photo: Stanford News Service

B7

Robert W. Floyd

08/06/1936 – 25/09/2001

Program Correctness

Floyd was a pioneer of the idea of applying mathematics to the problem of program correctness. His work contributed significantly to Hoare Logic / formal programming language semantics.

Software Engineering

Floyd is said to have been one of the first advocates of refactoring and rewriting programs from scratch.

Turing Award 1978